

September 2013 Fellowship

September 1. The next best thing to being wise oneself is to live in a circle of those who are.
C.S.Lewis

September 2. Fellowship is a place of grace, where mistakes aren't rubbed in but rubbed out. Fellowship happens when mercy wins over justice.
Rick Warren

September 3. There is a bond of fellowship in sorrow that knows no conventionality.
Harold Bell Wright

September 4. Good fellowship and friendship are lasting, rational and manly pleasures.
William Wycherley

September 5. Remember and help America remember that the fellowship of human beings is more important than the fellowship of race and class and gender in a democratic society.
Marian Wright Edelman

September 6. The deepest of level of communication is not communication, but communion. It is wordless...beyond speech...beyond concept. Thomas Merton

September 7. Eating, and hospitality in general, is a communion, and any meal worth attending by yourself is improved by the multiples of those with whom it is shared.
Jesse Browner

September 8. Friendship is born at that moment when one person says to another: What? You too? I thought I was the only one.
C.S. Lewis

September 9. Don't walk behind me; I may not lead. Don't walk in front of me; I may not follow. Just walk beside me and be my friend.
Albert Camus

September 10. It is not a lack of love, but a lack of friendship that makes unhappy marriages.
Friedrich Nietzsche

September 11. A friend is one that knows you as you are, understands where you have been, accepts what you have become and still, gently allows you to grow.
William Shakespeare

September 12. It contributes greatly towards a man's moral and intellectual health, to be brought into habits of companionship with individuals unlike himself, who care little for his pursuits, and whose sphere and abilities he must go out of himself to appreciate.
Nathaniel Hawthorne

September 13. It is true that it's a solitary occupation, but you would be surprised at how much companionship a group of imaginary characters can offer once you get to know them.
Anne Tyler

September 14. To get the full value of joy, you must have someone to divide it with.
Mark Twain

September 15. I have learned that to be with those I like is enough.
Walt Whitman

September 16. And as ridiculous as it may sound, sometimes all any of us needs in life is for someone to hold our hand and walk next to us.
James Frey

September 17. When we cannot bear to be alone, it means we do not properly value the only companion we will have from birth to death---ourselves.
Eda LeShan

September 18. One of the signs of passing youth is the birth of a sense of fellowship with other human beings as we take our place among them.
Virginia Woolf

September 19. There is a fellowship more quiet even than solitude, and which, rightly understood, is solitude made perfect.
Robert Louis Stevenson

September 20. Men have sometimes exchanged names with their friends, as if they would signify that in their friend each loved his own soul.
Ralph Waldo Emerson

September 21. We must take our friends as they are.
James Boswell

September 22. The best friend will probably get the best spouse, because a good marriage is based on the talent for friendship.
Friedrich Nietzsche

September 23. In a multitude of acquaintances is less security, than in one faithful friend.
Herman Melville

September 24. A benevolent man should allow a few faults in himself, to keep his friends in countenance.
Benjamin Franklin

September 25. A friend is one who incessantly pays us the compliment of expecting from us all the virtues, and who can appreciate them in us.
Henry David Thoreau

September 26. We walk alone in the world. Friends, such as we desire, are dreams and fables.
Ralph Waldo Emerson

September 27. Commitments, not feelings, hold life together.
Mason Cooley

September 28. There would be no society if living together depended upon understanding each other.
Eric Hoffer

September 29. We stroll amiably together, careful never to peer into one another's shadows.

Mason Cooley

September 30. She was struck by the simple truth that sometimes the most ordinary things could be made extraordinary, simply by doing them with the right people.

Nicholas Sparks